A friend in the rain

Last week I was walking to home after playing tennis when it started raining very heavily. 'Oh no, I will get soaked before I reach home,' I thought. 'I wish I had remembered to have bring my raincoat.' But, unfortunately, I had left it at home. How stupid of me! I am always forgetting to bring it with me. Luckily just then a friend of mine was passed in her car and offered me a lift. 'Are you going to home?' she asked, 'or do you want to go for a drink?' 'I think I'd rather you took me home,' I said. 'If I don't change for my clothes, I know I will fall ill, and then I won't be able to play in the tennis tournament next week. And I have been practicing hard for the last month.' 'I will wait for you to change if you like it,' she told me. 'I think it's time you relaxed for a change. You have been worrying too much about things lately. And people who worry too much fall ill more easily. It's got nothing to do with the rain!'

Welcome to the home of the future

The 2009 British Homes Awards challenged the industry to design a house that can adapt to different life stages.

The participants were asked to rethink the construction and design of individual homes, so that they were easily adaptable to less mobile inhabitants, and also to create communities in which ageing occupants could continue to enjoy shared amenities.

The top design also had to be attractive to its potential buyers, because the competition was put to the public vote.

The winner, gaining 12,000 votes from Mail on Sunday readers, was the strikingly modern SunnySideUp, designed by Kosi Architects. Here are its three main features:

1. Upside Down House

The architects took as a starting point the accepted norm for a house – rows of houses facing onto streets crammed with cars, with living rooms on the ground floor and bedrooms above. Then they scrapped it.

They ended up with the living room, dining room and kitchen on the top floor where they can benefit from the light and views, and maximise energy efficiency. And they put the bedrooms on the ground floor where the garden aspect gives inhabitants increased privacy, and a cool temperature is maintained throughout the day. The two floors are linked by wide, gentle gradient stairs, which are designed to allow for a stair lift to be fitted if necessary as owners age.

2. Concealed Parking Spaces

But the feature that, according to Warren Rosing, one of the Kosi architects responsible for the design, was particularly popular with the public, is actually the parking.

In a SunnySideUp development no one has to look out onto a street full of cars, or worry about their kids being run over, because the terrace zone at the first floor level link all the homes and is a car-free zone.

Vehicles are tucked away on the lower floor, leaving safe and pleasant spaces outside the houses for people to meet, and kids to play.

A lift takes people directly from garage to living area, so that all residents, including the elderly and those with heavy shopping, can move comfortably between the floors. The natural feel of the front area is enhanced by the planters that are placed outside the kitchens at the front to encourage residents to grow vegetables and flowers where they can be seen.

The idea is that not only would they look pretty, but they would be a talking point, encouraging interaction between residents on the terrace area outside.

3. Flexible Spaces

But it's the fact that the space is designed to adapt to the changing needs, including the fluctuating income of its owners, that makes it a thought-provoking, as well as a winning, design.

The lower-floor bedrooms have separate outdoor access so they can be easily let. The idea is that owners can get some extra money to pay for their mortgages during the first years. And later in the future, those bedrooms can be used as a granny flat, or an office, and can easily be converted into a separate one-bed flat if your kids won't leave home.

And if more space is required, as well as the usual loft that can be converted, there is potential for a gallery floor to be inserted in the living room.

4. Where can you get one?

At the moment the SunnySideUp house is still just a set of drawings. But Warren Rosing says, "We are hoping to have it built."

The organisers are in talks with builders, but due to the economic climate it may take longer than we would like. "We're sure it will be worth the wait" they say.

7. According to the article, the SunnySideUp development ...

- a. is being built
- b. will never be built
- c. will hopefully be built
- d. has been recently built

2. According to the article, in the winning property, bedrooms are downstairs to ...

- a. benefit from the view
- b. have easier access to the house
- c. have more privacy in the living room
- d. keep the same pleasant atmosphere the whole day

4. According to the article, in the SunnySideUp house the ground floor ...

- a. can be rented
- b. can be sold separately
- c. is only used to store cars
- d. has a room for grandparents

6. According to the article, the house has been designed ...

- a. to be rented
- b. to be shared if necessary
- c. for families with a small income

Text 2: Read the text carefully and mark or circle T if the answer is true, F if the answer is false, and N/G if the answer is not given.

Child marriage in Nepal

Nepal has made important progress over the past few years to promote equality, but the country still has one of the highest rates of child marriage in the world. 41% of Nepalese girls are married before the age of 18.

Poverty is both a cause and consequence of child marriage in Nepal. Girls from the wealthiest families marry 2 years later than those from the poorest, who are seen as an economic burden, and who drop out of school and earn little money.

Food insecurity plays an important role too. Nepalese families that do not have enough food to eat are more likely to marry their daughters at a young age to decrease the financial burden. One study shows that 91% of people who had secure access to food married over the age of 19.

Dowry is also common practice in many communities. Parents marry their daughters as soon as possible because the money they have to pay to the groom's family is higher if their daughter is older.

Since 2010, the legal age of marriage is 20 for both men and women, or 18 with parental consent, according to the Nepalese Country Code.

The law states that punishment for child marriage is imprisonment for up to three years and a fine of up to 10,000 rupees (£102). But reports suggest that this law is rarely applied.

There has been quite a lot of progress in Nepal over the past 3 years with a clear government commitment to ending child marriage and civil society cooperation.

The Ministry of Women, Children and Social Welfare is currently developing Nepal's first national strategy on child marriage in collaboration with UNICEF Nepal and Girls Not Brides Nepal.

However, the post-earthquake and post-fuel crisis environment has meant progress is slow and the national strategy has been delayed.

1. T F N/G The majority of those 41% of Nepalese girls marry between 12-14 years of age.
2. T F N/G Families want to marry their daughters soon to earn money.

3. T F N/G According to the law, people aren't allowed to marry until they are 18.
4. T F N/G Parents who marry their children before the allowed age normally pay a fine.
5. T F N/G The government is not doing much to put an end to child marriage.
6. T F N/G The recent earthquake was negative for the eradication of child marriage.
7. T F N/G The age of marriage in Nepal depends on the money the families have.
8. T F N/G The Ministry of Women, Children and Social Welfare, in cooperation with UNICEF Nepal and Girls Not Brides Nepal, has elaborated national strategy on child marriage which is the first of its kind.
